

The SRI&ETTC at Stockton University is proud to present
PREVENTING BULLYING IN SCHOOLS
Winter 2018

Presentations for School Administrators, Guidance Counselors, Social Workers, Student Assistance Counselors, K-12 Teachers, and Anti-Bullying Specialists

Merging Research-Based Bullying Prevention and Response Practices with ABR Compliance

Bullying and bias are serious issues that affect student safety, educational environment, and school liability. Schools in New Jersey must meet the dual challenge of complying with the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights (ABR) while also protecting student safety using evidence-based recommended practices for addressing bullying. This presentation focuses on school bullying, ABR and NJ LAD compliance, diversity awareness, strategies for addressing bias in the school environment, and practical solutions for ABR implementation. Participants will learn to distinguish bullying from conflict and social mistakes, to understand the distinction between “classical bullying” and “HIB” as defined by the ABBOR, warning signs of bullying and bullied youth and common mistakes and omissions that can leave students unsafe and districts vulnerable.

Date & Time: Thursday, February 1, 2018, 9:00 am – 3:00 pm

Cost: $178 or 7 ETTC Hours

Addressing Bias in Your School Climate: An Often Overlooked Element of School Climate, Bullying Prevention, and ABR/ NLAD/ Title IX Compliance

This workshop highlights the critical importance of pro-active efforts to address various forms of bias as part of comprehensive anti-bullying programming and legal compliance. General efforts to promote a positive school climate might fail to effectively address specific biases in the school environment. Each form of bias and diversity poses unique challenges in the school environment. The emphasis is on understanding each type of diversity in its own right and enhancing knowledge, skills, and strategies for educating students and creating an equitable and welcoming school climate for all students.

Date & Time: Thursday, March 1, 2018, 9:00 am – 3:00 pm
